About APO Reef

The largest coral reef in the Philippines is called Apo Reef, and it is the second largest continous reef in the world. The three islands make up the Apo Reef Natural Park. Of the three islands, Apo Reef is the largest. It contains a shallow lagoon that ranges in depth from two to ten metres, encircled by mangrove forest. This area provides food for numerous marine and coastal animal species, as well as a haven for birds. Its varied corals cover about 34 square feet. km. of reef where a variety of fish, marine animals, and invertebrates can be found thriving.
